LOCAL AND GENERAL NEWS.

Rev. B. Fay Mills.

Rev. B. Fay Mills, the evangelist who will have charge of the Union revival services to commence in this city March 2nd, is at present at Jersey City, N. J. The daily papers of that city report of wonderful success, hundreds of people being turned away every night from the auditorium building, in which he has been holding services. We credit the following to the Jersey City Evening Journal under date of Friday January 11th:

Under the most favorable auspices, the Rev. B. Fay Mills opened his three weeks of evangelistic labor in the Tabernacle, last evening. Before the doors were opened at seven o'clock, a half hour prior to the commencement of the exercises, the sidewalks in the vicinity were crowded with people, eager to gain admission. The number collected was almost sufficient to pack the structure's overcrowding, yet the throng increased. In five minutes after the policemen stationed at the four gates threw them open, every seat in the auditorium and gallery was occupied, and still the people came. The aisles were filled with camp chairs, only one row, however, being placed in each. When these were filled the space between them and the pews were tenanted by people who had not secured seats. The three hundred and sixty members of the choir were admitted by a side door. They occupied seats upon the graded platform erected for the recent flag presentation, which had been left in position, expressly for these services. When every foot of space had been taken up, there remained in the vestibule and on the street as many people as there were inside the building.

Ivy Temple of Pythian Sisters.

The temple of Pythian Sisters was organized last evening. The meeting was held at the Castle hall of Coeur de Leon Lodge No. 17, and preliminary steps taken towards organization. The temple is to be known as the Ivy Temple of Pythian Sisters and meetings will be held on the second and fourth Monday evenings of each month. The following officers were elected: Past Chief, Mrs. Mary Wingo; Grand Master, Mrs. J. G. Gable; E. S. Sec. Mrs. C. C. Stoddard; E. J. Sec. Mrs. E. G. Allen; Manager, Mrs. J. G. Badenhausen; M. of R. & C. Mrs. A. T. Grist; M. of P. Mrs. W. E. Knight; O. Mrs. J. M. Crane; G. S. Mesdames R. W. Ferguson, F. W. Wagner and Miss Ida Howe. It was decided to hold the installation of officers on the evening of February 19, which is also the twenty-sixth anniversary of the organization of the Knights of Pythias. A banquet will be given at all Pythian lodges of this city will join in the celebration.

Grand Army Gossip.

Officials at the headquarters of the Illinois Department of the G. A. R. are absorbed in the preliminary preparations for the Department Encampment to be held at Quincy on March 12 and 13. The roster is nearly completed and the annual reports are in the hands of the printer. They show that during the year ending in 1889, a fraction over 1 per cent. of the membership, which now exceeds 33,000. Veterans of the war are evidently a pretty lively set in spite of wounds and infirmities incurred during the struggle. There were twenty-four new posts authorized during the year, and the order made a net increase of 1,250. Financially it is in a flourishing condition, having a handsome surplus in the treasury. Illinois continues to discuss the question of a choice of the next commander. Col. W. L. Distin, of Quincy, is in the lead for the honor, but may be defeated by Gen. McNulty, who has recently been placed in the field. The honor of H. W. Bolton, of Chicago, is not regarded as likely to prove formidable, for the reason that he belongs to Post 28, which has already had a department commander. It is said Col. Distin has consented, if elected, to retain the department headquarters in Chicago, and thus is an important concession to the comrades of northern Illinois. Bloomington Post-Tribune, Feb. 10.

The material of the chapel will be stone and the cost $10,000. Springfield Republican.

ODD ACCIDENTS.

Mr. Rand's Flight from House into the River and Other Happenings.

They may have been due to the eccentricities of the season or merely to the wanton malevolence of luck, but not a few extraordinary accidents have occurred in Connecticut within a day or two. Some of the casualties were attended with odd circumstances.

William Rand, of Groton, got out of bed in the most matter of fact way at his home the other morning and stumbled into the kitchen to build the kitchen fire as usual. He went in to touch it off with naphtha fluid, a method he had used a hundred times before. He remembers now that he had the naphtha can in one hand and was slowly tipping it to let the fluid trickle into the stove. There may have been a five cent coin in the kitchen floor, or he may have been in an unusually wicked kind of fluid; at least the next thing he knew with any facility was that one or two of his neighbors were pulling him out of the Thames river.

As the roof of Mr. Rand's dwelling had been raised some inches at the time of his quitting his home, so that he was not clung to the roof squarely through it, and as he found himself suddenly in the water, he did not know what to do, and as he reflects nothing about going to the river in any way except by a ditto parabolic curve, it is reasonable to infer, he thinks, that the naphtha can exploded. He was very dangerously hurt.

Homer Willis, a 12-year-old Williamville lad, was lounging along the road to school a day or two ago when he found an old looking shell by the wayside, and he picked it up. He examined it closely, and his curiosity was excited. He didn't know but it might be a new kind of trapped rat. So he laid it down on a rock, and getting a stone, whacked the shell several times with great force. Then suddenly the air turned black, the queer rat mysteriously disappeared, and a moment later, when Homer had regained his right mind, he found himself on his back on the road. He recovered, and a couple of queer round holes had been bored through his upper lip. The surgeon who dressed the boy's wounds said he guessed the old rat was a dynamite cartridge, and that it had belonged to Williamville sewer men at work on Valley street.

A man was sauntering along Main street, in Hartford, the other day carrying a long ladder over his shoulder, and he looked at the ladder darkly at a point just past several crooked steel hoops. Right behind the painter came William Harper, who lives on Pleasant street, who was walking quickly and unsteadily, for he was going home to dinner. The rear end of the ladder was not six inches from Mr. Harper's nose, and in this queer procession the painter and the other man stumbled on for about a block at the same gait. Then suddenly the painter stopped to examine a "barren in wool undershirts" in an adjoining shop window, "that were selling for fifty cents less than cost," but William Harper neglected to stop voluntarily. Instead, the ladder punched him a foot into the air clear of the sidewalk and flung him down on the sidewalk with a smashed jaw and a banged and bleeding eye.

The man with the ladder squared around in astonishment and awe and then helped Mr. Harper into the drug store of Dr. Root, who pestered and fixed up his wounds, and Harper was taken home in a hack. The painter says he fails to see how he is responsible for the mishap of a man who pitched into his ladder and was squarely knocked out. John Welch, of Portland, met a similar mischance, except that he was whaled by a wheelbarrow instead of a ladder, and it was his own barrow, too. He was wheeling the barrow through his hardware shop when he stumbled, and then in a swift and unaccountable way he got mixed up with the barrow, and before he could separate himself from the legs and wheels and iron of the machine he had thrown him a broken his arm. The fracture was a very bad one, and he will not be able to do business with a wheelbarrow again for several months. Norwich (Conn.) Letter in New York Sun.

Emine an Adventurer.

A pamphlet has been published in Constantinople, in which a Turkish writer, Ebrahiz Tewfik-Bey, declares that Emin Pasha is nothing but a vulgar adventurer. Dr. Schmitzler — that was Emin's name before his conversion to the Mohammedan religion — was the guest in 1889 of Ismail Pasha, governor of Erzerum. When the latter was sent to Santarhi, Dr. Schmitzler accompanied him to his new residence, and also later to Tebe and Constantinople, where Ismail Pasha died in 1873. The doctor then embraced Islamism, married the wife of his benefactor, Emin Hanum, and took the name of Emin.

After staying some time longer in Constantinople Emin went to Sietin, in Germany, taking with him his wife and her four children by her former husband. One day Emin went to Neisse to attend a relative's wedding, and since then he has sent no tidings of himself to his wife, who was left with her children in extreme poverty. More than this he carried away with him his wife's jewels, worth more than $20,000. These he sold to get money with which to go to Egypt, whence he reached the Sudan, the cradle of his celebrity. Transatlantic.

Influencing the Jury.

A coincidence that is very remarkable is reported from Decatur. A teamster who had been hurt by a car running into his wagon brought suit for damages against the railway company. The case came up a few days ago, and the jury decided to visit the scene of the collision — a steep hill. They embarked in a car belonging to the defendant, and had just reached the hill when the car ran into a car belonging to the plaintiff, breaking two of the windows and shaking up the jury men. The teamster received a verdict of $1,100. Philadelphia Ledger.
